

FALL OF ANTWERP IMMINENT

RING FIGHT WAS FATAL

Young Huddie Dies at San Francisco Hospital Following His Collapse After the Bout

(Special to The Herald)
San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Young Hud-die, of this city, who last night fought six rounds with Knockout Carroll in Cossroth's arena, died here today at St. Francis' hospital, where he was taken following his collapse after the bout.

Physicians state that Huddie died because of concussion of the brain.
Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Carroll and the managers of the fight.

York and Kittery Husbands
Ask Court for Divorce.
Among the divorce cases heard on Wednesday in the York County Court at Alfred, was that of Arthur W. Sewell of York, against his wife, Edna May Sewell, formerly of Wellesley, Mass., where they married in February, 1910. Sewell in his appeal to the court charges his wife with abusive treatment, and further alleges that she often attempted to kill their child and cruelly abused the little one. He requested the custody of the child. The action of the husband was not contested by the wife.
In the same court, Wallace C.

Chase of Kittery appeared in action against his wife, Alice L. Chase. He charged a statutory offense. Libel-ant asks for the custody of the three children.

vention will be held at the Congregational church. The convention will last three days and a very interesting program has been arranged. The est in the convention and will endeavor to make the stay of the delegates

Germans Bombarding City With Their Ponderous Siege Guns

TRAIN DRAGS MAN IN DEPOT

Attempted to Get Off Before Train Stopped.

An aged man named Green, had a narrow escape from death at the Boston and Maine station on Wednesday evening. Passengers who witnessed the scene held their breath and turned their heads when they caught sight of the man being dragged along the platform iron of the smoking car.
The fact that he managed to keep his hold on a door saved his life. He is said to have attempted to get off from the "flying yankee" before the train came to a stop and was dragged 25 or 30 feet.

A traveling man and "Dick" Keefe
one of the tray boys at the Armstrong Cafe ran to his assistance and succeeded in keeping his body from being crushed beneath the wheels.
In assisting Green, the traveling man sustained an injury to his ankle.

(Special to The Herald)
London, Oct. 1.—The fall of Antwerp is believed imminent, despite the strength of the fortifications defending the temporary capital of Belgium. The news that the Germans are bombarding the city with their ponderous 42 centimetre siege guns, the same as reduced the forts at Liege and Namur, leads military men to believe that the reduction of the works at Antwerp will prove an easy matter for the invaders.
It is the conviction that King Albert of Belgium is prepared to flee if it is seen that the Belgians cannot successfully defend Antwerp.

BRITISH CRUISER CAPTURES PRIZES
(Special to The Herald)
London, Oct. 1.—The capture of the German gunboat
Soden and ten German merchant steamers, including the liner Arnfried, by the British cruiser Cumberland, at the mouth of the Kamerun river in West Africa, was announced by the admiralty today.

ALLIES REINFORCED BY INDIA TROOPS
(Special to The Herald)
Paris, Oct. 1.—Seventy thousand India troops have reinforced the allies' army, and are now taking part in the decisive dash in the great battle of the Aisne. The 70,000 India soldiers who were brought into the war zone through the port of Marseilles, comprise the flower of the British Empire's great colonial army.

RUSSIANS CONTINUE THEIR SUCCESSES
(Special to The Herald)
Petrograd, Oct. 1.—The continued success of Russian attacks on the German invaders of Russian Poland was announced in a dispatch received from the Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of all the Russian armies.
This is the seventh day of the conflict precipitated by Germany's attempt to cross the Niemen and take the fortress of Ossowiec. It was stated at the war office that they have failed in both efforts, and large reinforcements are being sent from the west to assist them.

JAPANESE AND CHINESE TROOPS IN BATTLE
(Special to The Herald)
Peking, Oct. 1.—An unconfirmed report is current here that the Chinese and Japanese troops have been engaged in battle with the Germans west of Kiau Chau. No confirmation of the report can be obtained from official quarters but the Japanese minister has called at the foreign office twice within the past twenty-four hours.

SITUATION REMAINS UNCHANGED
(Special to The Herald)
Paris, Oct. 1.—The allies have made progress on both their right and left wings, but the situation as a whole has undergone no change. An official announcement issued this afternoon says:
"There is no modification as a whole in the situation. We have progressed on our left north of the Somme and on our right in the southern part of the Woevre region."

TOWN AFTER TOWN A BLACKENED WASTE
(Special to The Herald)
Ghent, Oct. 1.—Town after town in northern Belgium, many of them dating back for centuries, are being destroyed by the fierce artillery duels between the Belgian and German guns.
Fighting is going on between the Belgian and German soldiers over a line about sixty miles long, stretching from Hierre to Malines, from Termonde to Alost, thence in the direction of Waereghem. Each side has its heaviest artillery in action, and the destruction of these mighty guns is dreadful. By the time that the fighting comes to an end northern Belgium will be only a blackened waste.

GERMANS BOMBARD
THE JAPANESE
(Special to The Herald)
Tokio, Oct. 1.—German warships in the bay of Kiau Chau are furiously bombarding the Japanese position about Tsing-tao. German aeroplanes are assisting the warships by dropping bombs upon the Japanese, who have lost two officers and a number of men.

WAR WITH ITALY BELIEVED AVERTED
(Special to The Herald)
Rome, Oct. 1.—The official announcement was made today that Austria has apologized to Italy for the presence of mines near the Italian coast in the Adriatic, has expressed its regret for the sinking of Italian ships, and has promised to remove the mines and to pay damage to the victims of the mines. This action of Austria is believed to have averted the crisis which would have led to a war between the two countries, if Vienna had refused Italy's request.

BOSTON AND MAINE WILL NOT ACCEPT SCHEDULES

Concord, Sept. 30.—The Boston & Maine railroad has notified the New Hampshire public service commission that it will not accept the schedule of freight rates framed by the commission which has been on trial by the railroad.

By the terms of the act of the legislature of 1913 the public service commission was to frame such a schedule, the railroad was to try its operation until Oct. 1, and then either accept or return to the rates in force prior to the consolidations of 1853 and 1859. The determination of the railroad to return to the old rates is based on the decision of the supreme court in Clough and Martin against railroad, whereby the railroad is allowed to fix such rates upon any commodity as in the aggregate shall not be higher than the aggregate of rates charged upon that commodity prior to the consolidations.

The Boston & Maine also has asked the public service commission for a rehearing in the matter of the commission's refusal to allow an increase in mileage book passenger rates.

If the commission does not change its decision in this matter, the railroad will take an appeal to the supreme court, where the case will be heard in connection with the pending appeal of the Maine Central railroad from the decision of the commission requiring it to issue 500-mile books at $10, the same rate which the Boston & Maine now seeks to raise.

Kenneth Nash is a Lawmaker when He is Not Working as Ball Player

St. Louis, Sept. 1.—No the caption is not a mistake. He is Senator Nash, right. Got the title by being elected to the senate in Massachusetts. He does not work as a senator in the summer time, for when the weather is warm, he is a ballplayer with the St. Louis Cardinals. He exerts around third base and vicinity, picks 'em up where they are, and throws them right or wrong. And when he is at bat he tries to knock 'em where they ain't. And he sometimes succeeds. It will be well to watch Senator Kenneth Nash. With two such occupations and jobs he is likely to do something worth while.

tion. But he was deposed, and the club never has amounted to anything since. Stallings took hold of the Boston Braves in 1913. They looked like a no-chance lot of fall and propositions. He landed them in fifth place, despite the fact that he was away from them for quite a time owing to illness.

What he has done with the 1914 Boston Braves is history.

"THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS"

The fourth week of William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness" at the beautiful Wilbur Theatre in Boston shows steady success and increasing and increasing popularity for this most American of all actors. The very stage and for this star who is the most modern of all actors. The very spirit of the masses of the American people—that homely, basic, cheerfulness and optimism which distinguishes our native character and homeliness shine forth delightfully in this well-named drama. The large audiences dash in the happy Yankee wit and the sunshine of the place, Deanna Thompson's heart-throbs in "The Old Homestead," James A. Hume's pathos and humor in "Shore Acres" and "Sug Harbor" and Sol Smith Russell's quiet, droll, sentiment in a "Porr Relation," have all passed into this latest drama of village life. The heart interest and the humor cause the spectators to sway between smiles and tears, while Hodge, as Jim Whittman, the struggling young carpenter, striving to be a lawyer, is the local Lincoln. He has all the spirit of the youth of that village bred president. His sayings are full of inspiration. "They set a new light in the eye and start a new laugh on the lip. The title of the play comes from Whittman's motto "Courage and confidence in the truth—this forms the road to happiness." And this courage is the foundation of his cheerfulness. "You can't fight trouble with tears," he says. "Tears help trouble just the way water helps flowers." He doesn't mind being the target of village gossip. "While they're roasting me, they're letting somebody else cool off." Droll, quiet, quizzical and shrewd, Whittman himself is always cool. His slow, cool drawl, adds to the wit of his homespun epigrams. As he says to the lady Squire: "Let's make it easy, now. If we start slow we won't be so tired when we get where we're going." When the thunderstorm breaks up his mother's birthday party on the lawn, he only says: "Let it rain; it'll make the ducks and flowers happy. Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch herself never had more cheerfulness of spirit or quaintness of originality in expressing it. This entire play of American home life is picturesquely realistic and charming throughout and as Jim Whittman, Mr. Hodge has a new character success that makes one even forget his Daniel Voorhees Pike in "The Man from Home." "The Road to Happiness" at the Wilbur is one that everybody should travel.

THE PASSING OF THE BOSTON THEATRE

Will be Removed to Make Way for New Hotel.

Negotiations are nearly completed for the purchase and lease for a long period of several of the most desirable lots on Tremont, Washington and Mass. streets as a site for what will be the largest hotel in New England. One of these lots is that on which stands the Boston Theatre, the most noted and one of the oldest playhouses in this country, so that the deal will mean the passing of this theatre.

The hotel is to be constructed in two sections, separated by Mason street above ground, but connected below the surface of the street, somewhat after the manner of Kellie's Theatre nearby. The building will be fireproof and will be modelled closely on the lines of the Hotel McAlpin in New York, so far as service and prices go, although architecturally it will be entirely different and of noticeable design.

Portsmouth, N. H., Thursday, October 1, 1914.

A Highly Commendable Plan.

At a time when thoughts of war and its horrors are in the minds of all it is a pleasure to contemplate the plan of the war department to take steps which will enable soldiers of the United States army to prepare themselves during their terms of service for civil positions, and to aid them in securing positions when they are discharged or furloughed to the recently created army reserve, many if not all of the enlistments now being for three years in the line and four as a reserve. This means that active service will cease at the end of three years, but that the men may be called back to the ranks in case of necessity at any time within the next four years.

In the past it has taken many men who had served in the army some time to find their proper places in civil life, and some were never able to place themselves to advantage. For this reason it came to be understood that a term of army service was liable to prove a serious handicap in after life, and without doubt this prevented the enlistment of many young men of just the stamp that the army needs.

But this fear will be banished if the plans of the war department are carried out. Under these plans soldiers will have an opportunity to study for such positions as they feel they are naturally fitted for, and when the time comes for them to leave the ranks the government will recommend them according to character and qualifications and do all it can do assist them in securing positions.

A great deal of the work will be done through the recruiting agencies, which will gather information concerning opportunities for employment in their districts, with the rates of wages, salaries, etc., and this will be furnished to the men before they leave the army, in order that they may select the kind of work they wish to do and fit themselves for it.

This is an important step and one that is clearly in the right direction. It means that a young man of the right calibre can serve a term in the army and return to civil life with little, if any, disadvantage, while there will doubtless be many instances in which young men will be actually advanced by their experience and studies in the ranks of Uncle Sam. Such work in all the armies of the world would further the cause of universal peace far more than large armaments do.

Buy a Barrel of Apples.

President Wilson has pleased the South by his suggestion of buying a bale of cotton to relieve the congested market. In New England there is a good sized apple crop, many of which will go to waste, owing to the fact that there is no European market this year. Would it not be a good idea for the President to issue another slogan of "Buy a barrel of apples?" This, if carried out, would no doubt be pleasing to many a New England farmer.

Talk of "mediation" by irresponsible busybodies is annoying the administration at Washington, and it is easy to understand why this is so. It will be well to leave this matter in the hands of President Wilson. He knows the conditions far better than the average citizen and is prepared to act when the time for action comes. The president may not be right in all things, but he is everlastingly right in his efforts to keep the United States out of the Mexican and European imbroglios.

In England the cost of marriage licences and fees is being reduced to encourage young men to marry before entering the army. At this distance it is difficult to understand why this is done unless the government is anxious to raise up a large class of soldiers' widows. But as it costs about $10 to get married in England under present regulations, a reduction would seem to be in order, war or no war.

October 9 will be "fire prevention" day in New York state, by designation of Governor Glynn, and everybody will be expected to study ways of preventing and putting out fires. A day set apart for this purpose may be all right in its way, but the fact remains that fire prevention should be studied every day in the year, and the results of the study should be put into practice.

Not much has been heard of late about the ravages of wood alcohol, but instances of mistaking it for the real article are reported occasionally, and the latest comes from Vermont, under whose present liquor laws there would seem to be no excuse or necessity for the use of wood alcohol as a beverage.

Some of the "pork" was taken out of the river and harbor bill when the appropriation was reduced from $53,000,000 to $20,000,000. The money shovelers can let up when the pressure is hard enough.

Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson is now waging war on alcohol, which, whatever one may think of the idea of national prohibition, is better business than trying to stir up trouble with Japan.

It is already apparent that bright colors are to predominate in the autumn styles for foliage.

Scene on Battlefield When German Caisson Was Demolished by Shell Fired by French.

This picture, made on a battlefield in France after the German army had abandoned a position, shows an artillery caisson that had been destroyed by a French shell. The shell had caused the ammunition in the caisson to explode, and that had completed the destruction.

UNIVERSALISTS AT DOVER

Lowell L. Corson of Berlin
Now Head of State
Body.

Dover, N. H., Sept. 30.—Much business was done at the second day's session of the New Hampshire Universalist Convention. The greater part of the morning was occupied by the Y. P. C. U. Standing committees reported and a considerable sum was raised from annual pledges.

These officers were elected: Lowell L. Corson of Berlin, president; Rev. Roger B. Peitz of Concord, vice president; Miss Florence L. Blanchard of Dover, secretary; Henry A. Stevens of Manchester, treasurer; Miss Hope M. Tidout of Nashua, B. R. Hall of Woodsville, Clayton O. Towne of Marlboro, members at large.

The Universalist church convention organized for business at 11 A. M. with Hon. Hosen W. Parker of Claremont in the various churches. At 1:30 the occasional sermon was delivered by Rev. J. Frank Thompson of Winchester and was followed by a communion service.

The remainder of the afternoon was given over to the women for the annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. Olive L. Kimball of Marlboro presided. Reports from the mission circles of the state churches showed active cooperation in the work of foreign missions. An address was given by Mrs. Rose Johnson of Auburn, Me.

These officers were elected: Mrs. Olive M. Kimball of Marlboro, president; Mrs. Frank N. Dole of Bedford, vice president; Mrs. H. W. Carr of Manchester, secretary; Mrs. Abigail B. Luce of Claremont, treasurer.

Horace Williams of Concord spoke on "Some Present Day Tendencies in Religion," and Rev. Dr. Frederick A. Hisebee, editor of the Universalist dominion.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO MOVIE FANS

One of the greatest masterpieces of the silent drama of this year is one of foreign manufacture by George Kleine's Italian company. The name of the film is "The Lion of Venice," in six parts. The Venetian authorities are very strict in their censorship relating to Venetian history and considerable red tape proceedings were necessary before the Kleine company was granted permission by the authorities to use certain properties that were essential in making the film of historical atmosphere and to use the Grand Canal unimpeded by the traffic at a certain time on a certain day. A gondola used in the 15th century was used; also many of the dissolves, as the gondolas were called in their day, were borrowed from the museum. The rich decorations of the small cabin amidships indicated the prominence to which the patrician family belonged. The use of these properties, dresses and other necessary items and costumes, were granted Mr. Kleine on his stipulating to pay all expenses for their taking out and bringing back, and as guarantee for their return in the same condition as when they were borrowed, the sum of $25,000 was deposited with the city treasurer. The mayor of the city also required a careful program in detail of the production and it had to bear the name of an eminent writer of Venetian history and of an eminent artist who was prepared to warrant the artistic value, truthfulness, and seriousness of the film. In addition, a commissioned officer of the Italian army was appointed to accompany the camera man in all of his work, to prevent him from filming any part of the fortress or any other forbidden object. The spectator of this film will not see the semblance of a horse, automobile nor any drawn vehicle through the entire six parts. The gondola is the only means of transportation. Among the beautiful pageants prominent in the film are the ceremony of the Marriage of the Sea, and the Orsini wedding procession.

The death has just been announced of Miss Flora Foster, a sixteen year old talented actress of the Biograph company. With her sister "Billy," and Rev. Dr. Frederick A. Hisebee, editor of the Universalist dominion.

career won exceptional popularity and gave promise of big things in years to come.

Sidney Ayres of the American company has left the latter company. He is coming East, and possibly may enter the licensed ranks.

Kathlyn Williams, leading woman for the Selig Company and heroine in the "Adventures of Kathlyn" series put on by that company, is one of the leading feminine writers of this country. A London magazine has requested an article from this eminent Selig actress.

Mary Fuller is now working in her second photoplay with the Universal Company. It is a three reeler written by Miss M. B. Havey, a writer who has written some of the best two reel Lubin pictures seen at the Portsmouth Theatre. Poor Mary, she does not seem to be getting the publicity the Edison Company gave her, and without a doubt, she will not get it in her present surroundings.

PEOPLES' OPINION

Opportunities Lost.

Does it occur to the reader and to the public in general, what opportunities to improve our city are allowed to pass without serious thought? We are not awake, in our interests. Rather asleep—too often.

Recently the brick block near the corner of Dear and Market streets was allowed to be erected, crowding its front to the limit of space, defeating the plan of widening Market street at this point. With little expense to the city, the old Sherwin building could have been moved ten feet to the rear, and the new block placed on the same line, thus greatly relieving the congested condition at this corner. But the city took no action to obtain the needed widening of the street.

In this connection it occurs to the writer that another opportunity presents itself, of even greater advantage, if in the building of the theatre which will occupy space on Church and Porter streets, some ten feet were added to the width of Church street. Imagine this now narrow street, with such addition of width, and perhaps later on the improvement to extend to State street. Right in our centre of trade, would not the change be most desirable and an increase to the valuation of all property in the vicinity. Would not the new theatre building present a far more imposing appearance?

The opportunity will have forever passed if not thus improved, before the enterprising projectors of this costly building complete its present plans. Interested Citizen.

QUICK WORK BY AUCTIONEER

The sale at the Winchester Farm on Tuesday, by Auctioneer C. Dwight Hancum was one of the most remarkable auction sales in this state for many years. Mr. Hancum began selling promptly at ten o'clock, and sold rapidly and continually until 5 p. m. More than fifty head of cows and young stock, also horses and all the carts, carriages, sleighs, harnesses etc., were disposed of during that time, averaging two minutes to each sale made throughout the day, which was certainly quick work.

CURRENT OPINION

WE'RE NOT GIVING CHILDREN
A SQUARE DEAL

Under existing child labor laws in the various states it is a PERILOUS THING FOR ANY CHILD TO BE BORN IN THIS COUNTRY OF POOR PARENTS because it is almost inevitable that such a child will not be given a chance to develop mentally and physically as nature intended, and the state will be to blame, though some states are kinder to poor children than others.

IF ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S CHILDREN IS BORN INTO A POOR FAMILY, EVEN A VERY POOR FAMILY, IN OHIO, WISCONSIN OR MASSACHUSETTS, HE WILL PROBABLY HAVE A FAIRLY NORMAL CHILDHOOD, RECEIVE SOME EDUCATION AND BE GIVEN THAT THING AMERICANS PRIZE—"A CHANCE." BUT HE WILL NOT HAVE THAT CHANCE IN EVERY STATE.

We like to believe that American children are a bit luckier than any other children just because they live in America, but the COLD FACTS ARE THAT IN A LARGE PART OF THE UNITED STATES THE CHILD OF POVERTY HAS NO CHANCE. We are not giving the children a square deal.—By Helen C. Dwight of National Child Labor Committee.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., Sept. 30.—Dr. A. R. Taylor, former President of the Kansas State Normal School and the James Milliken University in Illinois, spoke at the chapel today interesting the students by informing them that every day in college is worth $200 to each of them. He said this in answer to the question "Does college education pay?"

Dr. Taylor said the statement went to show that the high school graduate earns twice as much as the man who does not go to high school, and that the days in high school eventually turn out to those who enjoyed them to have been worth $50 a day. The college days are worth about four times as much.

Dr. Taylor is on a tour of the east investigating college management. He is accompanied by Mrs. Taylor and has just come from Maine.

Mr. B. E. Curry announces that the bulletin giving the results of the annual examination of cattle feeds and fertilizers will soon be issued from the office of the chemist of the experiment station. The bulletin is of the greatest importance to the farmers of the state and gives them in tabulated form the plant food value of each commercial fertilizer sold in this state. With this guide the grower is able to select the fertilizer which will really meet his needs.

For the best corn in this region there should be from 15 to 20 inches of rain in the growing season. More or less water than this means poorer grain.

This truth is established as a result of a series of experiments carried on by the agricultural department of New Hampshire College. Mr. F. S. Prince explains that the corn was grown in concrete basins like gigantic flower pots but without the hole in the bottom. This last feature was to keep the water in the earth outside from coming up to the plants. The big basin was divided by walls into seven compartments and six were irrigated with varying quantities of water and one left to be watched by the rain.

The natural rainfall this season here was 18 inches, or well within the best crop limit.

The Freshman Class met just before the chapel today and effected partial organization. R. F. Cahalane of Stamford, Conn., was chosen president.

Miss Frieda Reiner of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been appointed assistant in home economics. Miss Reiner is a graduate of Rhode Island State College and has taken work in the Teachers' College at Columbia University. She is taking graduate work here in home economics and German.

RUSSIANS SMASH GERMANS IN EAST

Repulse Attack on Nieman River And Hurl Them Back--Four Mil- lion Russians in Main Army.

Petrograd, Sept. 30.—That the German offensive against the defenses of the Nieman river has been completely frustrated and that the Germans are now in complete retreat in Suwalki province was officially announced today. It was stated that the Germans had failed in their attempt to capture the roads leading through the forests of the Nieman and that they were now being pushed backward at every point.

The fighting was especially desperate in the vicinity of Osowetz, Drushkiki and Augustowo. The objective of the Germans was the northern outlet to the forests in that section and they were also anxious to get across the Nieman river and to retake Grodno, from which they were driven.

In an address to his army, Gen. Rennenkampf is quoted today in advice from the front as declaring that the Russians will be in Berlin for Christmas and that, therefore, the troops can easily meet the present hardships and campaigning through heavy rains, with expectations of good times to come.

March Onward in Galicia

Meanwhile the onward march of the Russians through Galicia is declared to be proceeding uninterrupted in two parallel lines. The Austrian resistance is declared to be already so badly broken that the troops of the dual empire seem unable to make a decided stand. It is not believed they will give battle until Cracow is reached. The Austrian Crown Prince Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, is reported to have reached Cracow yesterday and to have taken command of that post with Gen. Conrad von Hotzendorf as his chief of staff.

Dispatches received here from Gen. Persch, Galicia, declare that all the prominent Austrian provincial and city officials, together with the judges, the archbishops of all the churches and the rabbis, attended the establishment of Russian civil government over eastern Galicia and the assumption of the office of governor general by Count Bobrinsky.

St. Petersburg, mayor of Lemberg, is formally surrendering the government spoke in Polish, and said:

"Not without our co-operation have the Austro-Hungarian troops left Lemberg without firing a shot. There was no struggle here, thanks to our efforts. We believe your excellency has been informed that your troops found here co-operation and a cordial reception. In proffering the government of this capital allow me to express my gratitude to the former military governor, who lessened our hardships."

Count Bobrinsky replied in Russian. After thanking the mayor for keeping order in the town, he said:

Introduce Russian Language

"I think it necessary to acquaint you with the leading principles of my policy. I consider Lemberg and East Galicia the real origin of Great Russia, since the original population was Russian. The reorganization will be based on Russian ideas. We will immediately introduce the Russian

German "No Respect Art"

A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Amsterdam states that a telegram from Brussels, reaching Amsterdam by way of Berlin, says:

"In the battle around Malmedy the German artillery was instructed not to bombard the town, in order to spare the cathedral. The Belgians themselves threw heavy shells into the town from Fort Wolffstein."

The commander of the German troops around Antwerp announces his readiness to make the following agreement with the Belgian government and the American and Spanish ministers:

"If the Belgian military authorities will agree not to use the monuments of the city, and particularly the steeples of the churches, for military purposes, the Germans will spare these monuments as far as possible while using the high explosive powder of modern shells."

The Times has received the following dispatch from its correspondent in Bordeaux:

"The constant thrust of bayonet charges and the battering of heavy guns has made but little change along the heavily entrenched German centre, but the less rigid tank positions have been hammered into broken and shambolic lines both on the left and the right."

"On the left front is the broadening outswEEP of the allies' turning movement. While reaching further to the north it is pressed out at a slightly wider angle."

"While the position in the centre is virtually unaltered, on the right it is difficult to trace events with any great accuracy. Between the Argonne and the Meuse the French are progressing slightly against entrenched and fortified positions."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back Hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headache, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

TWO CORRESPONDENTS PASS GERMAN LINES

Deauvais, Sept. 30.—Despite the strict orders of England, France and Belgium and Germany that no war correspondent be allowed at the front, two of them have just arrived here from the scene of fighting. One of them related their experiences.

Their first adventure was to be caught by a Uhlans patrol near Clermont.

"We were in a motor car," said the correspondent, "and when we turned a corner sharply, we saw the Germans coming, eighteen of them."

"In the few seconds which passed between our seeing them and their coming to us we did a good deal of hard thinking. Luckily I had taken the precaution to hide all the passes and recommendations that would identify me as a journalist in my boot. Our safe-conducts did not say who we were. To all appearances we were just ordinary people with an eccentric fancy for motorizing in the dark night zone."

"Germans," I murmured warningly to my companions.

"Rather," he said, as if he had come out on purpose to meet them.

"Then we pulled out our safe-conducts and hoped for the best."

"Vos papiers," said the officer in command, speaking French with a good accent. He studied them attentively.

"Offen?" (open), demanded a gruff corporal on the other side of the car, pointing to our bags. He had a very large revolver, with which he covered us, while one trooper, lance in hand, kept the point of it, menacing, toward the chauffeur. The rest stood around with expressionless faces, except three, who went on a little way to keep watch against any surprise. Both they and their horses were in good condition. They were as silent and impassive as sphinxes.

"Out of my bag the gruff corporal tore some maps. The other contents he tossed contemptuously back. Mr. Moore's bag was passed, too, although it had a khaki suit right at the top. Unfortunately the first thing that showed itself when our driver's valise came to be examined was a revolver. The corporal grunted with delight as he pocketed it. He glanced at the officer as much as to say, "What need have we of any further proof?" He had a resentful, blood-justful look in his eye.

"But the officer was a gentle, thoughtful type of man. He took no notice."

"From where do you come?" he inquired.

"From Deauvais, monsieur."

"And you are going where?"

"To Paris, Monsieur."

"Ah! to Paris."

"He smiled reflectively, as if to say, 'I am going there, too.'"

"Then he studied our papers again and compared the atrocious photographs pasted on them with our sun-burnt faces."

"Then the corporal was busy again. He demanded a newspaper which the driver had. The driver thought he wanted his bowler hat, which was in a net in front of him. He offered it politely. 'Nein, nein, die Zeitung,' he was told."

"Den Sitz aufheben," (lift up the seat), next ordered the corporal in German. We did so. Nothing concealed.

"Give me those maps," (the maps by which we were traveling). We smiled at him cheerfully as we handed them over. Everything in the car was turned over. Nothing incriminating turned up.

"Then came the matter of the safe-conducts."

"These are no use," the officer said, still speaking in French.

"We began to explain that we had gone through all needful formalities, but he quietly cut us short."

"They are no use," he repeated. He was evidently wondering what to do with us, and wondering, also, how far off the French were.

"We began to feel like the criminal who has been found guilty while the judge addresses him before passing sentence."

"Then, all of a sudden, we found we were discharged."

"With a sharp word of command the other jerked his patrol into motion. 'All right,' he said in fairly good English. 'It is all right.' And they walked their horses quickly away."

"We did not lose any time either. To say we felt thankful would be like saying of a man naked in a snowstorm and the wistful eagerness with which they struggled for a sight of some newspapers that I collected from the car to give them. 'War, monsieur,' he said, 'is madness. Think of the part-ridges I have had the trouble of ruling. All frightened away! and think of men killing one another on such a fine day!'

"After a while we found a road to the right which we could follow. At the corner were some French cavalry. On a hillside they spotted the horsemen. What were they? Uhlans? Field glasses were leveled. A scout was sent off to observe them. We thought there was a chance of a scrap. But they were only the flankers to the division in retreat."

"We did not have clear roads for long. Soon we came upon artillery. They were very courteous. They let us go by. One officer stopped us but it was only to say, would we take a telegram for him and send it off with the first office we passed? We thought it must be an official telegram, for he was an officer of high rank. But when he read it over to me it ran: 'Safe and well. Best love.' It was a telegram to his wife. I cannot tell you how I liked him for that."

"Just after this we heard of our Uhlans again. As we hustled back to the main road we had caught the tap-tap-tap of rifles. Now we learned what it meant. They had been sighted and fired on. Only three were seen galloping away. These joined another large party and went down the road to Clermont just after we and our four soldier passengers had by another piece of good fortune turned off."

"Maximus mounted on motor cars and to be seen in all directions now checking the enterprise of these patrols. An officer in charge of one of these, congratulated us upon a victory won by British cavalry at Compeigne over the German Horse Guards. 'It was a very fine piece of work,' he told us."

"Dashing and decisive."

"A round-about road brought us back to Deauvais, no battle being expected until tomorrow. We had to ask frequently whether the road was safe or not. It was a comfort when the great cathedral, standing high above the town, came in sight. We had an interesting round."

"Go back, go back," they called out to us. "The streets are full of Germans."

"Then we understood why the officer in charge of the patrol had let us go. He knew we were heading straight for a place which had just been occupied by Germans. He felt certain we would fall into German hands again. It was only by a stroke of luck that we did not."

"I have never seen a motor car turn so quickly as ours did. The driver seemed to swing it right around by one furious pull at the wheel. Back we rushed. Where had the French army got to?"

"Here at all events, were four of us soldiers jogging along in a covered van right into the enemy's lines. Hurriedly we explained to them what had happened. In a few seconds they were out of their van and into our car and we were tearing along again."

"It was dangerous, of course, but we could not leave the poor fellows there. If they catch us, I said, 'we shall say you took us prisoners. They won't shoot you, anyway. That might get us off.' Fortunately they did not catch us."

"Turning off where we guessed the troops must have turned, we soon saw some cavalry ahead. Anxiously we stopped and looked at it through our field glasses. Was it friend or foe?"

"They were the rear guard of a large French force of infantry that was marching under the broiling mid-day sun."

"It was slow work and hot work moving along with them. Many officers offered to let us pass, but the courteous old general of division asked us not to hurry ahead, so we could only do about two and a half miles an hour. We were so glad to be with our own side again, though, that we would have cheerfully gone, if necessary, upon our hands and knees."

"Every now and then there would be a halt and the troops would throw themselves down in any shade they could find to rest for a few moments. At one halt a stream was discovered. 'An old gamekeeper in the service of the Marquis de Broteuil, was looking on. The men's thirst touched him,

Why Pay More For One House Paint Than Other?

Did you ever have a red paint go pink on you after a year's exposure?

Did you ever get a house paint that spread like glue, so it took you an hour more to spread each gallon than it should have?

Did you ever examine the surface of your house two years after it was painted with a cheap house paint to see whether the wood was really protected though the color might be there?

Cheapness is generally secured in one or all of these three ways. You do not save any more by buying cheap paint than in buying anything else that is inferior—in fact, you lose more, because the labor of applying house paint is worth three times the material, so why expend good labor on inferior goods that will not wear as long nor look so well?

Paris, Sept. 30.—That the French have recovered the ground lost when the Germans captured one of the minor positions connected with the fortified position at St. Mihiel was made known in the official review of the situation, issued at 2.58 this afternoon.

It added that the French are now progressing east of St. Mihiel, which is the first time since the Germans announced that they had crossed the Meuse between Verdun and Toul that the official communiqué has mentioned St. Mihiel.

The report seems to set at rest the report that the German right wing was in full retreat, although it is emphasized that the French left continues to gain ground.

French Making Gains

The report as telegraphed from Bordeaux and made public at military headquarters here, says that the Germans made a vigorous attack on Tréver-le-Mont only to be repulsed with heavy losses. The French are progressing east of St. Mihiel and are driving the Germans back.

On the left it is declared that the action is developing to the northward, with violent fighting continuing. In the Woëvre region, also, severe fighting continues. There are only slight modifications in the general situation at the various other points along the line.

The announcement that the general situation at the various other points along the line.

The announcement that the general turning movement of the allies north of the Somme progressed rapidly is taken here to mean that the withdrawal of the German right wing is already in progress. It had been recognized for several days that when the German line gave way at this point it would mean the retirement of the entire German army to the new positions already prepared in Belgium and between the Scheldt and the Meuse rivers. That this movement is already in progress is believed certain here.

Orderly Retreat Expected

It is not assumed that there will be any rout of the Germans. The aerial scouts already reported that these new positions have been prepared, exactly as those now held by the Germans were and it is expected that the Germans will fall back in good order, fighting as they go. Every effort, however, is being made by the French forces to penetrate the line between the armies of Gen. von Bülow and Gen. von Kluck. This movement is now in progress. If it succeeds, it will mean that a part of the German army and probably part of von Bülow's can be cut off and either killed or captured.

Military experts pointed out this afternoon that the significance of the operations along the Meuse can hardly be overestimated. It was at this point that the Bavarian army delivered its most telling blows in the apparent hope that they could divert attention from the German right, force the withdrawal of part of the allied force on the left to aid the imperilled center and thus enable von Kluck to strike a decisive blow. That has definitely failed, and now the German center is in grave danger in its turn.

End Now in Sight

Military experts united this afternoon in declaring that the end of the battle of the Meuse is definitely in sight and that, like the battle of the Marne, it will prove a decisive victory for the allies. They also declare it is very likely to hasten the end of the war, as two successive defeats of this magnitude can be expected to encourage the anti-

BELGIANS ATTACK GERMANS

London, Sept. 30.—A dispatch to the Central News from Amsterdam says that refugees arrived from Ghent report that Belgian forces marching on Brussels are in contact with the Germans.

A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Amsterdam says that the Telegraph has received this message from Antwerp.

"From various points the garrison made sorties and repulsed the German with heavy losses. The bombardment of Fort Waelhem and St. Catherine by the Germans continues. A sharp attack has been delivered by the Germans on Fort Liezele and three other points."

Antwerp to Be Besieged.

It is now considered certain that the reduction of the Antwerp forts will be attempted and that this operation will be carried on by marines and naval reserves from the fleet and the engineers from the landward organizations and the siege can last for weeks. The arrangements will not be necessary for the Germans to withdraw any of their active troops from France, as they are now being engaged.

It is reported here that the German line outside of Antwerp is now reported that heavy German siege artillery which was used with the German in the reduction of Maastricht is being brought up from the south.

It is not believed that it will be possible for the Germans to take Antwerp. The fortifications have been placed in condition to withstand a siege of all points. In addition there have been new rapid-fire guns mounted at points of vantage and the dykes have been opened, flooding the lowlands.

Serious at Ghent

Reports from Ghent say that conditions there are serious because of the enormous number of refugees who have flocked to the city. Included are language and Russian customs. These steps will be taken with the necessary care. We shall at first limit this to the appointment of Russian governors and other officials. Many of the present executives will not be replaced. We shall for bid the convocation of your legislature during the war. All social and political organizations must be discontinued and may

KAISER'S CATTLE CAPTURED

London, Sept. 30.—A dispatch to the Star from Petrograd says that among the remarkable war trophies arriving at Smolensk is the entire herd of Emperor William's famous pedigree cattle and stud of horses captured by the Russians from the Emperor's estate at Tsaritsyn in East Prussia. They were taken to Moscow and presented to the Russian agricultural institute for distribution to agricultural breeding associations.

A dispatch from Rome to the Exchange Telegraph Company, dated Tuesday, says:

"A Petrograd message states that a fierce battle between the army of Gen. Rennenkampf and that of the German Gen. von Hindenburg has been raging since Sunday morning along a front extending from Grodno to Orshanka on the Niemen river. Four army corps have been engaged on both sides and the Russians are being constantly reinforced from Vilna. The Russians already have repulsed the Germans at several points."

A dispatch from Petrograd to the Reuter Telegram Company says:

"An unconfirmed telegram from Vilna, in the Russian Baltic province, says German warships have appeared several times since the war began in the waters off Vindau, a seaport of Russia, in Courland, on the Baltic sea."

A large fleet with transports appeared Sept. 25, but soon disappeared in a southerly direction. On Monday afternoon 18 German destroyers and a cruiser came fairly near the coast and sent two boats to make soundings near Backhofen lighthouse, 11 miles south of Vindau. The Russian forts fired on the boats, which suffered some loss. The German destroyers then fired on the lighthouse and after ward put to sea."

Dean's regulations are recommended by many who say they operate easily, without griping and without bad after effects. 25c at all drug stores.

Five drinks were on the police blotter last night. They were of the harmless variety.
